St. Louis, MO— The Mid America CropLife Association (MACA) honored several industry, media and academic leaders at its recent annual meeting in Indianapolis, Indiana.

The Ruth White Media Award is presented to an individual who's demonstrated an evidence of consistent, objective and accurate reporting on American agriculture and the myriad of issues involved in modern agriculture, including the CropLife industry. This year's winner is Gil Gullickson, who serves as Crops Technology Editor at Meredith Corporation.

Gil has been reporting on agriculture since graduating from South Dakota State University in 1983 with a minor in journalism.

For the last decade (plus), he has been covering developments in seeds, agricultural chemicals and other agricultural technologies for Successful Farming magazine.

Gil is the current president-elect of AAEA, the Agricultural Communicators Network, and received the coveted Story of the Year award at the 2018 Ag Media Summit.

The Mid America CropLife Association (MACA) is a non-profit association of manufacturers, distributors/formulators and allied industry of crop protection products in 13 Midwestern states. MACA works to research issues relating to crop production and to work together to improve the crop life cycle, via health, safety and public education. Check our web site at www.maca.org.
